12:00 Noon

The passion of artists for weather as well as the meteorology behind some of the finest work ever produced, will be discussed. These artists were honest and accurate observers of the weather and the details they recorded on the canvas are enough to reveal a great deal about the location, their subject and the weather they were experiencing before, during and after the work. This science of forensic meteorology will be applied in a fun and exciting look at the work of weather artists.
